

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

CHAD M. CARLSEN and SHASTA
CARLSEN, husband and wife, et al.,

Plaintiffs,

v.

GLOBAL CLIENT SOLUTIONS,
LLC, an Oklahoma limited liability company; ROCKY MOUNTAIN BANK & TRUST, a Colorado financial institution,

Defendants.

NO. CV-09-246-LRS

ORDER DENYING MOTIONS TO COMPEL ARBITRATION,
*INTER ALIA

BEFORE THE COURT are the Defendants' Motions To Compel Arbitration (Ct. Rec. 13 and 23) and Motions To Dismiss (Ct. Rec. 11 and 21).

These motions were heard with oral argument on February 4, 2010. Darrell W. Scott, Esq., argued on behalf of Plaintiffs. Richard W. Espstein, Esq., argued on behalf of Defendants.

I. BACKGROUND

This is a diversity class action in which Plaintiffs allege Defendants have violated Washington's Debt Adjusting statute, RCW Chapter 18.28 RCW, and/or aided and abetted a violation of the same, and that these violations are in contravention of Washington's Consumer Protection Act (CPA), RCW Chapter 19.86. Global Client Solutions, LLC (GCS) is in the business of receiving funds for the purpose of distributing those funds among creditors in payment or partial

ORDER DENYING MOTIONS TO COMPEL ARBITRATION, INTER ALIA -

1 payment of obligations of debtors, including the Plaintiffs. GCS, in partnership
2 with Rocky Mountain Bank and Trust (RMBT), maintains and manages debt 3 settlement accounts that are part of debt settlement programs offered by companies 4 such as Freedom Debt Relief, LLC, and Silver Bay Financial, Inc..

5 Plaintiffs Chad and Shasta Carlsen received a letter from GCS, dated 6 August 16, 2007, welcoming them to GCS and advising that GCS was “the 7 processor for all activity related to your account” at RMBT. According to GCS, 8 “our duties as the processor for your account include the drafting of funds from 9 your primary bank account into your account at RMBT as provided for in your 10 application<sup>1</sup>, as well as making payments to your creditors when we are instructed 11 to do so.” Included with the letter from GCS was an “Account Agreement and 12 Disclosure Statement.” Plaintiffs Carl and Mary Popham received an almost 13 identical welcome letter from GCS, dated February 3, 2009, although whereas the 14 debt settlement company for the Carlsens was Freedom Debt Relief, LLC, the debt 15 settlement company for the Pophams was Silver Bay Financial, Inc..

16 The terms of the “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” were 17 between the debtors (Carlsens and Pophams) and RMBT and GCS.<sup>2</sup> Each

---

18 19 <sup>1</sup> This is a reference to a “Special Purpose Account Application” which is 20 discussed infra.

21 <sup>2</sup> The “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” identifies GCS as the 22 customer service provider for RMBT and defines “we” in the agreement to include 23 RMBT or any agent of the bank, including GCS. The Carlsens and Pophams 24 executed separate agreements with their respective debt settlement companies, 25 Freedom Debt Relief, LLC, and Silver Bay Financial, Inc. Those agreements are 26 not at issue in this case.

1 agreement contained the following clause regarding “Arbitration and Application
2 of Law:”

3 In the event of a dispute or claim relating in any way to 4 this Agreement or our services, you agree that such dispute 5 shall be resolved by binding arbitration using a qualified 6 independent arbitrator of our choosing. Further, you agree 7 that any arbitration shall take place in Colorado Springs, 8 Colorado and that the laws of the State of Colorado shall 9 apply. The decision of an arbitrator will be final and 10 subject to enforcement in a court of competent jurisdiction.

11 Defendants seek to enforce the clause and ask the court to enter an order 12 pursuant to the Federal Arbitration Act (FAA), 9 U.S.C. §4, compelling Plaintiffs 13 to submit their disputes to binding arbitration per the terms of the above quoted 14 clause.<sup>3</sup> Alternatively, Defendants seek dismissal of Plaintiffs’ Complaints on the 15 basis that those Complaints fail to state any claims upon which relief can be 16 granted. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6).

17 II. DISCUSSION

18 A. Arbitration

19 9 U.S.C. §4 provides in relevant part:

20 A party aggrieved by the alleged failure, neglect, or 21 refusal of another to arbitrate under a written agreement
22 for arbitration may petition any United States district 23 court which, save for such agreement, would have 24 jurisdiction under Title 28, in a civil action or in 25 admiralty of the subject matter of a suit arising out of 26 the controversy between the parties, for an order 27 directing that such arbitration proceed in the manner 28 provided for in such agreement. . . . The court shall 29 hear the parties, and upon being satisfied that the 30 making of the agreement for arbitration or the 31 failure to comply therewith is not in issue, the

---

32 <sup>3</sup> The parties do not dispute that the FAA applies to the contract at issue as 33 it involves “commerce” as defined in 9 U.S.C. § 1.

1 court shall make an order directing the parties to proceed 2 to arbitration in accordance with the terms of the 3 agreement. The hearing and proceedings, under such 4 agreement, shall be within the district in which the 5 petition for an order directing such arbitration is filed. If 6 the making of the arbitration agreement or the failure, neglect, or refusal to perform the same be in issue, the court shall proceed summarily to the trial thereof. If no jury trial be demanded by the party alleged to be in default
... the court shall hear and determine such issue.

(Emphasis added).

7 The Carlsens and the Pophams each executed a “Special Purpose Account 8 Application” which was submitted to RMBT. These applications were executed 9 at the same time the Carlsens and Pophams executed their respective agreements 10 with their debt settlement companies, Freedom Debt Relief and Silver Bay 11 Financial. The “Special Purpose Account Application” states, in very fine print, 12 that “the Account’s features, terms, conditions, and rules are further described in 13 an Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement that accompanies this 14 Application (the “Agreement”).” (Emphasis added). In the same fine print, albeit 15 italicized and bolded, the application goes on to state: “I [the signator] 16 acknowledge that I have received a copy of the Agreement; that I have read and 17 understand it; that the Agreement is fully incorporated into this Application by 18 reference; and that I am bound by all of its terms and conditions.” The Pophams 19 signed their “Special Purpose Account Application” on January 27, 2009, but the 20 record shows the “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” was sent to 21 them later along with their welcome letter dated February 3, 2009 (“Included with 22 this letter is your Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement”). The Carlsens 23 signed their “Special Purpose Account Application” on July 21, 2007, but the 24 record shows the “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” was sent to 25 them later along with their welcome letter dated August 16, 2007 (“Included with 26
27
28

1 this letter is your Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement”).

2 Both the Carlsens and the Pophams assert an “Account Agreement and 3 Disclosure Statement” did not accompany the “Special Purpose Account 4 Application[s]” they executed<sup>4</sup>, and the welcome letters corroborate that the 5 “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” was not received by them until 6 they had already executed the “Special Purpose Account Application[s].” 7 Accordingly, the Carlsens and the Pophams could not have agreed to the terms of 8 a contract (including the arbitration clause) of which they were not aware at the 9 time they executed their “Special Purpose Account Application[s]” and their 10 agreements with the debt settlement companies.<sup>5</sup>

11 Defendants contend Plaintiffs “cannot deny that they entered into a contract,

12 _____
13 <sup>4</sup> See Declarations of Shasta Carlsen and Mary Popham appended to 14 Plaintiffs’ response.

15 <sup>5</sup> After the Pophams received the February 3, 2009 welcome letter along 16 with the “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement,” they received another 17 letter, dated July 31, 2009, informing them that the account balance they had in 18 RMBT had been transferred “to a larger, FDIC-insured national bank,” that being 19 the Bank of Oklahoma, N.A., located in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Along with the July 31, 20 2009 letter, the Pophams received another “Account Agreement and Disclosure 21 Statement” which, according to the letter, was to “govern your account going 22 forward.” This new agreement contains an arbitration clause specifying that 23 Tulsa, Oklahoma is where binding arbitration is to take place “utilizing a qualified 24 independent arbitrator of Global’s choosing.” A separate “Governing Law” clause 25 specifies that Oklahoma law applies, “without regard to conflict of law 26 provisions.”

1 under which they performed and realized the benefits for months.” It appears true 2 that by the time Plaintiffs received the “Account Agreement and Disclosure 3 Statement,” they were already bound by the separate agreements they had 4 executed with the debt settlement companies and, by virtue of the “Special 5 Purpose Account Application[s],” had already authorized payments from their 6 Washington bank accounts into the accounts at RMBT which could be used to pay 7 creditors pursuant to their debt settlement “programs,” as well as the fees of the 8 debt settlement companies and RMBT and GCS. That, however, does not mean 9 Plaintiffs had assented to the terms of the “Account Agreement and Disclosure 10 Statement,” including the arbitration clause, of which they were not aware when 11 they executed their “Special Purpose Account Application[s].” Although 12 Defendants apparently contend that a copy of the “Account Agreement and 13 Disclosure Statement” was included with the “Special Purpose Account 14 Application,” they offer no evidence to contradict the declarations of Ms. Carlsen 15 and Ms. Popham, other than the language in the “Special Purpose Account 16 Application” that an “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” accompanies 17 the application. The court is unwilling to take that language at face value.

18 Defendants contend that “a person who is presented with a contract has a 19 duty to read it and if the person signs it, he or she is ‘conclusively presumed to 20 know its contents and to assent to them,’ regardless of whether the person actually 21 read it.” That is not the case, however, when a person is not presented with the 22 contract and all of its terms at the time he or she signs it. It goes without saying 23 that a person should at least have an opportunity to review the terms of a contract 24 before deciding to execute a document which binds him or her to those terms. The 25 Carlsens and the Pophams were not presented with such an opportunity at the time 26
27
28

1 they executed their “Special Purpose Account Application[s].” The sentence in 2 the “Special Purpose Account Application” which reads “I acknowledge that I 3 have received a copy of the Agreement; that I have read and understand it; that the 4 Agreement is fully incorporated into this Application by reference; and that I am 5 bound by all of its terms and conditions,” is of no consequence considering the 6 “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” had not been received at that 7 time.

8 Finally, Defendants apparently contend there is no legal requirement that 9 they even had to give the Plaintiffs a copy of the “Account Agreement and 10 Disclosure Statement.” For this proposition, Defendants cite Tjart v. Smith
11 Barney, Inc., 107 Wn.App. 885, 28 P.3d 823 (2001). Tjart, however, is clearly 12 distinguishable in that there, the court enforced an arbitration clause which was 13 actually part of the application the plaintiff signed. In Tjart, the plaintiff says she 14 signed the application and that after signing it, was not given a copy. Id. at 896.
15 Here, the arbitration clause was not part of the “Special Purpose Account 16 Application[s]” which the Plaintiffs signed, but rather part of a separate “Account 17 Agreement and Disclosure Statement” which did not accompany the applications, 18 notwithstanding the representation to the contrary in the applications (“Account 19 Agreement and Disclosure Statement that accompanies this Application”). The 20 “Account Agreement and Disclosure Statement” was not received by the Plaintiffs 21 until later.

22 23 B. Failure To State A Claim (Motions To Dismiss)

24 The threshold issues pertaining to resolution of the Motions To Dismiss 25 requires interpretation of certain provisions of Washington’s Debt Adjusting 26
27
28

1 statute, RCW Chapter 18.28. Are GCS and RMBT engaged in “debt adjusting” as 2 defined in RCW. 18.28.010(1), and if so, are they “debt adjusters” as defined in 3 RCW 18.28.010(2), or are they entities “doing business under and as permitted by 4 any law of this state or of the United States relating to banks . . . ”?

5 The parties acknowledge the dearth of legislative history and case law 6 interpreting the Debt Adjusting statute. Very recently, the Honorable Robert H.
7 Whaley of this district observed in Bradley v. Morgan Drexen, Inc., 2009 WL 8 2870508 (E.D. Wash. 2009) at *3 that “there are no reported cases enforcing the 9 Washington Debt Adjustment Act.” At oral argument in the captioned matter, the 10 parties indicated they were amenable to the possibility of certifying certain legal 11 questions to the Washington Supreme Court, although they appeared to agree that 12 limited discovery should be conducted regarding the precise nature of GCS and 13 RMBT, and what they do in conjunction with each other, and in conjunction with 14 debt settlement companies.<sup>6</sup> Accordingly, the court will authorize such discovery 15 with the intention that this will result in undisputed facts about the precise roles of 16 GCS and RMBT from which appropriate legal questions can be formulated so as 17 to allow the state supreme court to determine whether GCS and RMBT are 18 engaged in “debt adjusting” and are “debt adjusters” under RCW Chapter 18.28.

19 20 III. CONCLUSION

21 Plaintiffs did not agree to arbitrate their claims against the Defendants. An 22 agreement to arbitrate did not exist. Accordingly, Defendants’ Motions To Compel

---

23
24 <sup>6</sup> A scheduling conference has yet to be set and presumably, the parties 25 have not had a Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(f) conference, a prerequisite to the conducting of 26 general discovery.

1 Arbitration (Ct. Rec. 13 and 23) are DENIED.

2 Within sixty (60) days of the date of this order, the parties shall complete the 3 aforementioned limited discovery and serve and file with this court proposed 4 questions for certification to the Washington Supreme Court. The parties may jointly 5 propose the questions, or do so separately.<sup>7</sup> Determination of Defendants' Motions 6 To Dismiss (Ct. Rec. 11 and 21) is STAYED pending further order of the court.

7 IT IS SO ORDERED. The District Court Executive is directed to 8 forward copies of this order to counsel of record.

9 DATED this 4th day of March, 2010.

10 s/Lonny R. Suko

11 _____
12 LONNY R. SUKO
13 Chief U. S. District Court Judge
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21

22 <sup>7</sup> If the Debt Adjusting statute applies to GCS and RMBT, there is no need 23 to consider the viability of non-statutory causes of action asserted against them by 24 Plaintiffs. The court will not, however, rule out the possibility of certifying 25 additional questions to the state supreme court regarding the viability of non-26 statutory causes of action.
27
28

ORDER DENYING MOTIONS TO COMPEL ARBITRATION, INTER ALIA -